

Leipzig Music Trail

Leipziger Notenspur –
A step-by-step discovery

Leipziger Notenspur - Leipzig Music Trail

The Leipziger Notenspur Initiative

Leipzig offers a unique spatial density of the originally preserved homes and workplaces of renowned composers. Many of these composers can be encountered on the music routes of the Leipziger Notenspur, e.g.: G. Ph. Telemann, J.S. Bach, A. Lortzing, F. Mendelssohn Bartholdy and R. Schumann, as well as R. Wagner, E. Grieg, L. Janáček, G. Mahler, M. Reger and E. Schulhoff. The Leipziger Notenspur Initiative provides opportunities to discover this musical and cultural heritage and to combine an exploration of the city with a musical experience.

The Leipziger Notenspur: Rendezvous with Music Geniuses

The Leipziger Notenspur is a 5 km long route in the centre of Leipzig that connects the most important authentic sites, primarily composers' homes and performance locations from the baroque and romantic eras.

Further Projects

Two other projects – the Leipziger Notenrad (Music Ride) and the Leipziger Notenbogen (Music Walk) – are currently in development. More information is available on our website www.notenspur-leipzig.de and in the guidebook "Leipzig Music Trail" (Leipziger Notenspur) published by Kamprad-Verlag.

Project Supporters of the City of Music

The idea of the Leipziger Notenspur was derived from Leipzig's citizens and has been actively supported by volunteers. A great number of Leipzig citizens have contributed to the multi-faceted development of the project by sharing their ideas and experience. A far-reaching network is behind the music-, tourism- and citizen-related project "Leipziger Notenspur": music institutions, associations and individuals, with participation of Leipzig's higher educational institutions, Leipzig Tourism and Marketing GmbH and the city's municipality. The Cantor of St. Thomas Church, the Gewandhaus Music Director, the Director of the Leipzig Opera and the Chief Conductor of the MDR Symphony Orchestra are also among the supporters of the project.

Notenspur for Children

The Little Leipzig Music Trail ("Kleine Leipziger Notenspur") invites children to explore the city's music routes with the mascot Toni and a Notenspur Discovery Pass ("Entdeckerpass"), which can be obtained at the Leipzig Tourist Information Office (i) at Katharinenstraße 8.

Route and Audio Guidance Systems

The route guidance system consists of the in-ground stainless steel inlays that mark the way from station to station. Every Notenspur station has an information board. Since music can be mainly experienced through hearing, an audio guidance system was developed for Notenspur visitors as well. You can listen to the audio samples via phone (local call). A Notenspur-app for smartphones and i-Phones is available for download.

The European Heritage Label

The music of the famous Leipzig composers as well as the houses in which they have worked are a heritage of global significance. Therefore, the Music Trail Initiative has suggested to apply for an international award. As a result, the City of Leipzig, supported by the Free State of Saxony, has now adopted the proposal of the Standing Conference of the Ministers of Education and Cultural Affairs to apply for the European Heritage Label for the Leipzig Music Trail project.

Special thanks to

for the financial support of the route between the „Old City Hall“ (Station 13) and „St. Thomas Church“ (Station 17) (highlighted in blue on the map)

The "Notenspur" concept was created by the Leipziger Notenspur Initiative.

The implementation of the route and audio guidance systems of the Leipziger Notenspur was carried out by the City of Leipzig in cooperation with the Notenspur-Förderverein and funded by the Free State of Saxony.

Leipziger Notenspur / Leipzig Music Trail

Come explore the musical city of Leipzig on the Leipzig Music Trail! Nowhere else in the world can you visit the historical sites where so many famous composers and musicians lived and worked in such a short walking tour. The places waiting to be discovered include:

- › The churches where many of Johann Sebastian Bach's works were first performed
- › The home and last residence of Felix Mendelssohn Bartholdy
- › The house in which Clara and Robert Schumann spent the first years of their marriage
- › The Museum of Musical Instruments containing the oldest piano in the world
- › St. Nicholas School attended by Richard Wagner
- › The coffee house where Robert Schumann and his „Davidsbündler“ regularly met
- › The Old City Hall, the Gewandhaus, the Opera House and other sights of Leipzig

Simply follow the curved stainless steel signs in the pavements from one site to the next. Additionally, an audio guidance system provides you with audio clips and musical examples. These will transport you back in time and enable you to immerse yourself in the creative atmosphere of musical Leipzig through the centuries. The following symbols serve as a guide:

please call the phone number next to this sign to hear the audio clips

<d><e> for corresponding audio clips in German and English for selected musical examples

for audio clips on the Little Leipzig Music Trail

The journey along the Leipzig Music Trail lasts approximately three to four hours excluding visits to the museums. A Music Trail Discovery Pass („Entdeckerpass“) with puzzles and information on Leipzig's musical history is available for children and young people at the Leipzig Tourist Information Office.

More information on the individual stop-off points and the Leipzig Music Trail as well as museum opening times can be found at:
